All students must have their instrument choice confirmed by a band director by attending an orientation session. If you have not played before (this will be almost all students), plan to spend about an hour at a session. The directors will be working with several students simultaneously, helping each to try every instrument. If you have already played or think you know what you want to play, you must still come and have your instrument selection confirmed and approved by a band director. Upon arrival, you may have to wait for a band director to work you in. Exact punctuality is not necessary, but do try to come within the time frame you select and in time to finish by the end of the schedule time. If you absolutely cannot attend the session set for your school, you may attend another school's time. Please check the session you expect to attend:
